Sat 30th June

7.15pm

Two estranged brothers discover the price – of their parents' furniture and of the decisions they have made.

Victor, a New York cop nearing retirement, moves among furniture in the disused attic of a house marked for demolition. Cabinets, desks, a damaged harp, the relics of a lost life of affluence he's finally come to sell.

When his brother Walter, whom he hasn't spoken to for years, arrives, the talk stops being just about whether Victor's been offered a fair price for the furniture, and turns to the price that one and not the other of them paid when their father lost both his fortune and the will to go on.

Written and set in 1968 this is a classic of American Theatre, this play is topical in today's recession as it looks at the impact of the Depression of the 1930s in America as well as themes like family relationships, unfulfilled lives and the impact of the choices we make.
