we KNOW WHAT YOU did hARRY

It's November 1965 and Harry Wade rules the roost at his pub in Oldham

Harry makes the most of his reputation as the second best Hangman in England, and his customers overlook his shortcomings as a landlord to sup a pint poured by an executioner. He's a local hero, but appetite for executions is waning. As Parliament rules to suspend executions, Harry grapples with an identity crisis.

With his notorious side gig coming to a short and sharp stop, what else can he offer besides poorly pulled pints?

When an inquisitive journalist appears on the scene, Harry takes the chance to redefine his legacy. But will talking to the newspapers solidify his reputation or open old wounds? Especially when a mysterious new arrival to the pub seems to possess unsettling information about a past "client" and a keen interest in Harry's teenage daughter.

Only quick wits and sharp thinking will save the day, but they're in short supply amongst Harry and his regulars
